Bristol Aug Sept 3 1866

My dear Mother you will be glad to know that I have safely arrived at my destination and have been most warmly received by my friends here indeed I should think that you have been most pious and pleasant and I am sure but feel that there is a wide kind of directing and overruling all things for good. I have times my friends here but changed by circumstances and good he matter. I don't feel so strong the presence of God nor felt so little before for the presence. I have been reflecting we shall both commence a new page of our existence with more exalted aims and re-aid year.

Since you last saw Sullivan and I remained for fully eight full hours of sleep. On Sunday I attended a Coleridge service twice and both times wished you could have been with us. My thing was very much changed except believe the lessons. It was of your for better with hearing them any dollar a ticket. Concert you can had in Detroit. I also attended Coleridge service at Chester on Wednesday. On Monday I spent the day in walking over the city under the guidance of a friend who'd picked up on the steamer whose home is in Dublin. I presume must have walked over 20 miles and I was very fitly used up when night came. I paid my hotel bill and took a steamer to cross the channel. We sailed about 10 PM had a stormy passage and arrived at Holyhead in Wales the following (Tuesday) morning. I spent two hours in walking about this curious old Welsh town and then
