AMERICAN BANK NOTE COMPANY

March 25, 1986

Mr. Robin M. Ellis
14527 Woods Hole Drive
San Antonio, Texas 78233

Dear Robin:

Your postcard arrived this morning with an inquiry regarding the stationery used by ABNCo. for press releases. In the past, ABNCo. has always been very cautious about publicity because of the very nature of our business. We are and always have been a high security printing firm.

In recent years, our company has developed many new commercial products, one of them being the hologram. Since these holograms appeared on two covers of the National Geographic Magazine, there has been great public demand for information concerning our holographic capabilities, which resulted in our issuing many press releases. Our marketing department saw a need for new stationery such as you recently received.

Robin, I hope this has answered your question. As for the roster for SCCS, I have not received it yet. By the way, did you see the article in the March 26th issue of Coin World, Pg. 24? There is an article pertaining to our proposed Archive Series. Have you heard any comments from your colleagues yet? I would appreciate any feedback from you if possible.

Best regards.

Sincerely,

Aurelia Chen
Product Manager

American Bank Note Company, a subsidiary of International Bank Note Company, is developing a historical vignette series, which will open ABNCo.'s vast engraving archives to the collector. This program is being considered in response to the many requests ABNCo. has received over the years regarding information on the company's inventory of thousands of steel dies engraved by master engravers during the 19th century.

Many of these delicately engraved vignettes are representative of American life during the 19th century as seen through the artistic eye of the engraver. They also encompass a wide variety of subjects which include Indians, Railroads, Sailing Ships, Family Life, Architecture, Presidents and other notables in the financial world, and many more.

Up until now, examples of individual vignettes that have appeared on security paper have been scarce in some instances, and rare in most. ABNCo.'s unique program would enable collectors to match vignettes with notes and certificates in their collections and would include information pertinent to each vignette.

ABNCo. is planning to introduce this program in January 1987, through subscription only. The vignette and data sheets will be issued monthly and will be devoted to a particular subject each month. The subscription fee will range from $120.00 to $150.00 per year.

In June, at the International Paper Money Show in Memphis, representative vignette sheets will be on display at ABNCo.'s exhibit.
