COMMERCE AND LITERATURE

Jean Martel was born at La Sergeant, St. Brelade, Jersey in 1694. In 1715, he emigrated to the Cognac district of France, added an extra 't' to his name to distinguish himself as a Jerseyman from those using the French spelling, and established the Cognac producing house of Martell, today renowned throughout the world.

Victor Hugo, famous Poet, Author and Visionary, came to Jersey from France as a political refugee in 1852. He loved the island which he described as 'a little piece of France fallen into the sea and swept up by I and Auguste' (Jean Martell) (unrecorded Page)

WAR AND PEACE

In 911, Charles the Simple ceded part of his kingdom of France to Rollo(n) the Viking chieftain who became first Duke of Normandy. The seventh Duke, William (Conqueror of England in 1066), was buried at Caen, scene of the first recorded 'Clameur de Haro', a part of ancient Norman law still preserved in Jersey today.

Normandy was lost by King John of England to the French King, Philippe Auguste, following the fall of Rouen in 1204. The Channel Islands are now the last surviving territories of the Duchy.

PHILOSOPHY AND SCIENCE

Pere Teilhard de Chardin first visited Jersey as a young man to study theology and philosophy at the Jesuit College, Maison St. Louis. He developed here his hobby, geology, later becoming famous for extensive travels in China and Africa. Amongst his many books, 'The Phenomenon of Man' is now regarded as a major contribution to modern thinking.

Pere Charles Rey also studied at Maison St. Louis. Having served in Madagascar, he returned to Jersey becoming in 1933 Director of the Observatory, responsible for the meteorological and seismological records. He was both scientist and engineer, designing and constructing specialised instruments which are still in use.
