

Chalon Portrait

*New Zealand
Proof of #10
Colonial Print
Orig. Cat. 70.00*

Fascinating are the Chalon early Victorias, particularly those pencancelled. Some British colonies seemed to prefer this portrait to the more commonly used profile. New Zealand was among these, and to the postal history of far away New Zealand we dedicate this issue of Covers Magazine. Illustration courtesy Essay Proof Journal.

Oswald L. Harvey wrote: Queen Victoria was a clean-cut and attractive person but it took the Royal Academician Alfred Edward Chalon to make her beautiful . . . it is the function of the artist to reveal the soul of his subject and Chalon has depicted a queen. This is the Cousins engraving from the portrait as made by the British American Bank Note Co. Die No. 1 and is considered one of the more perfect reproductions of the Chalon. We might add that this was used for the first Chalon portrait stamp—the Canada 12¢ black of 1851.
