TUCK'S POST

CARTE POSTALE.

GUERNSEY.—St. Peter-Port from the Pool. The town of St. Peter-Port is built on the slope of a hill, with tier upon tier of tall red-roofed houses clustering down to the water's edge. It is traversed by a curious succession of long stair ways, with cross-lanes meeting at the "carrefours," leading up to other and still quarter and narrower steps. The whole place is very foreign in appearance.

Dear J. H.

Here we are having a good time, this place is about the size of 3 Grand Central. We were at the Japanese Ex. last night. Had a good crossing to Plymouth.
Yours sincerely,

ST. PETER'S CHURCH.

The Parish Church of Broadstairs was built about the year 1070, and enlarged in 1184, the architecture is of different periods, the nave being Anglo-Norman. There are several stained-glass windows, and some of the sepulchral memorials in the Church are of exceptional interest. In the Churchyard lies buried Richard Joy, called the "Kentish Samson," from his great bodily strength: he died May 18th, 1742.

Published by J. J. E. Puchling, 84, Peter's, Kent. Printed in England.

I thought perhaps you would like this for your collection. Yours affectionately
W. E. W.
