SPECIMEN

MULTI-COLOR WORK

The growing demand for better and safer methods in the preparation of securities not intended for listing on the New York Stock Exchange has compelled us to devise a new process which is far superior to lithography and offers difficulties to the reproduction processes second only to our regular steel plate work.

The cost of this system known as "Multi-Color" is but slightly in advance of the regular lithographic work, and the security it offers against counterfeiting infinitely superior.

In addition to which we use our new planchatted paper prepared for our sole use by special permission of the United States Government at the Crane Mills.

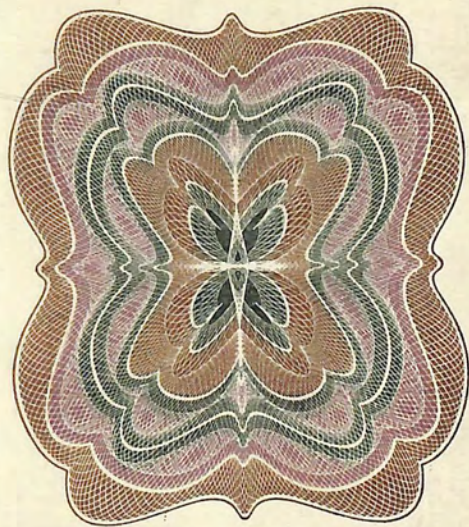

This document is a specimen of our combined Multi-Color work and planchatted paper, and we should be pleased to describe its advantages and quote figures upon application.

Dear Mr. Wehde:

Thank you for letting me see the enclosed item. It certainly is a beautiful piece of work. Unfortunately, I know nobody at the present time who might be in the market for such an item.

If you write to Herb Atherton, you might tell Herb that I would like a Christmas card like that from him.

Sincerely yours,

Max Gohl

By HERMAN HERST, JR.

Two and two makes four.

That equation does not bring a particular feeling of pleasure, but matching two items that are philatelic certainly do.

On December 15 1936, the late Max Johl wrote an engraver about some philatelic greetings that an engraver in Springfield, Mass. had made. The engraver, Carl Wehde, who was then located at 542 White St. in Springfield had sent Johl some engraved items in stamp form that bore the name of Herbert Atherton.

One has to be a really old time philatelist to remember Herbert Atherton. Herb was one of the nation's leading stamp dealers, and though located in a city with relatively small population, he was instrumental in helping to build some of the country's greatest collections.

The Johl letter was addressed to the engraver thanking him for letting him see something Johl called a "beautiful piece of work". Johl also adds to the letter "Tell Herb Atherton that I would like a Christmas card like that from him."

The name Wehde struck a bell in my mind. It rang home when I found in a collection some beautiful engraved "stamps" picturing a sailing ship under full sail. There were four with identical design but in black, orange, and green, with two of the latter. At the top is the word "GREETINGS", Herb Atherton at the bottom, with "1935" and "1936" in alternate corners at the bottom. Engraved into the bottom frame line, so tiny that engraving it must have been a task is "The Wehde Studio, 542 White Street, Springfield, Mass."

This had to be what Johl was asking

A small illustration of a person, possibly a soldier or a worker, holding a flag. The flag has a blue field with a white cross and a red border, which is the flag of Finland. The person is wearing a dark uniform and a hat. The illustration is in a blue and white color scheme.
