College: Indiana University

A career total of nine gold, one silver and one bronze Olympic medals makes Mark Spitz the most prolific Olympic swimmer of all time. He began his Olympic career in 1968 at the Games in Mexico City, where he failed to win an individual event, but won two gold medals in relay events and a silver and bronze in individual events — a satisfactory accomplishment for most people, but not enough for Spitz. It was his performance four years later during the 1972 Munich Olympic Games that made Spitz a household name throughout the U.S. He won seven gold medals, all of them in world record time.

Career Highlights:

1968 Mexico City Olympic Games
4x200-meter freestyle relay+, 4x100-meter freestyle relay+ Gold medal

1972 Munich Olympic Games
4x200-meter freestyle relay+, 100-meter freestyle+, 4x100-meter relay+, 200-meter butterfly+, 4x100-meter freestyle relay+, 200-meter freestyle+, 100-meter butterfly+ Gold medal
