The habitats protected with Federal Duck Stamp dollars benefit hundreds of species that need wetlands to feed, breed and rest. In some of the same salt marshes and shallow waters where you'll find ruddy ducks, you may also glimpse the Ridgway's rail, a grayish-brown, chicken-sized bird with a long, curving bill and a conspicuous whitish rump. Once abundant in California's wetlands, the Ridgway's rail fell to near extinction as wetlands were altered or developed. Your Duck Stamp purchase directly helps to protect habitat that is key to the survival of the Ridgway's rail and other rare species.

2016-2017 Migratory Bird Hunting and Conservation Stamp

In 1916, the U.S. and Canada signed the first international treaty to protect migratory birds. Overharvest and loss of habitat affected many migratory bird species, prompting important agreements and new laws to conserve shared wildlife resources and leading to cooperative habitat and population management. As we prepare for the next century of conservation, we still face many challenges to migratory bird conservation. But together, we can all do our part to create a bright future for our feathered friends.

Certificate of Appreciation

Thank You for Putting Your Stamp on Conservation!

Since 1934, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's Migratory Bird Hunting and Conservation Stamp (Duck Stamp) has been a vital conservation tool. In its 87-year history, the Duck Stamp has raised over $1.1 billion dollars which are dedicated to conserving important wetland habitats. As part of the National Wildlife Refuge System, these lands are home to hundreds of species of plants, mammals, fish, amphibians, insects, and a myriad of wetland and grassland birds. It's not just wildlife that benefits. Wetlands acquired with Duck Stamp dollars help purify water, aid in flood control, reduce erosion and sedimentation, and enhance outdoor recreation opportunities.

The Junior Duck Stamp Conservation and Design Program influences our next generation of wildlife conservationists and artists. Kindergarten through twelfth grade students in all 50 states, Washington D.C. and the U.S. territories participate in this educational program. Students learn scientific principles of waterfowl biology, wetland ecology and conservation through a dynamic curriculum. They then share their knowledge of the beauty, diversity, and interdependence of wildlife, habitats, and communities thru state and nationally sponsored art contests. Over 300,000 students, educators, families and community members are engaged annually through the program. Sales of Junior Duck Stamps support programs that connect young people with their natural world through science and the arts. Junior Duck Stamp artists have gone on to careers as wildlife conservationists and artists and share their talents as teachers.

As we release the 87th Federal Duck Stamp, we celebrate the millions of people who voluntarily invest in protecting quality wildlife habitat and engaging our youngest citizens so they grow up appreciating nature. By purchasing Federal Duck Stamps and Junior Duck Stamps, you have made a valuable and timeless contribution to habitat conservation.
