Negara Brunei Darussalam is one of the oldest countries in the Malay Archipelago which was existed since the 5th century. Brunei Darussalam came into existence as a Malay Islamic Monarchy since the reign of Sultan Muhammad Shah, the 1st King of Brunei who embraced Islam and started to rule approximately in 1363. Until now, according to the royal genealogy there were 29 sultans who ruled Brunei Darussalam. Of the total, the last five sultans were Sultan Hashim Jalilul Alam Aqamaddin, Sultan Muhammad Jamalul Alam II, Sultan Ahmad Tajuddin Akhbarul Khairi Waddien, Sultan Haji Omar Ali Saifuddien Sa'adul Khairi Waddien and at present His Majesty Sultan Haji Hassanal Bolkiah Mu'izzaddin Waddaulah, Sultan and Yang Di-Pertuan of Negara Brunei Darussalam.

Sultan Hashim Jalilul Alam Aqamaddin was the 25th Sultan of Brunei whose reign was between 1885-1906. He ascended the throne to succeed Sultan Abdul Kamin who died in 1885. During his reign, Brunei Darussalam faced several challenges of power expansion from Brooke at North-West Borneo (Sarawak) and British North Borneo Company at Northern Borneo (Sabah). To stop the power expansion and to maintain the survival of other Brunei territories from two Western powers, Sultan Hashim Jalilul Alam Aqamaddin create an agreement to protect the external affair of Brunei which was signed on 12 September 1888. To maintain the survival of Brunei Darussalam which was threatened by the territorial expansion of Brooke in Sarawak and British North Borneo Company in Sabah, Sultan Hashim Jalilul Alam Aqamaddin agreed to sign supplemented agreements to the 1888 Protectorate Agreement which were stamped on 31 December 1903 and 2 January 1906. The agreement had placed Negara Brunei Darussalam under the protection of Great Britain which brought in the British Residential System.

Sultan Muhammad Jamalul Alam II was the 26th Sultan of Brunei who ruled in 1906-1924. He ascended the throne to succeed his father Sultan Hashim Jalilul Alam Aqamaddin who died in 1906. During his reign, Brunei started to receive a British Residential administration system that was responsible to advise the Sultan on state-matters excluding the customs, traditions and religion matters. With the administration system, many changes were made by this country according to the British administration system; which amongst them included the formation of Land Enactment regulations, Privy Council in 1928 and the formation of Police Force, Postal Service, Magistrate Courts, Custom Department, Customs and Traditions, Medical and Education. With the administration system, Brunei Darussalam experienced basic development changes such as road constructions, shops built on bank, market, communication systems and so on. The secular education system started in 1914 when a Malay school was built in Brunei Town.

The 27th Sultan of Brunei was Sultan Ahmad Tajuddin Akhbarul Khairi Waddien, who ruled in 1924-1929. He ascended the throne to succeed his father, Sultan Muhammad Jamalul Alam II who died in 1924. During his reign, Brunei Darussalam commenced the production of oil in 1933 when oil was first discovered in Seria in 1929. The new source of economic made it possible for him to carry out various projects in order to raise the status of Negara Brunei Darussalam from various aspects such as the infrastructure development, socio-economic, communication, education and so on. During his reign also, The Second World War started. Brunei was occupied by Japan from December 1941 until June 1945. When the Japanese army defeated Japan, Brunei Darussalam was placed under the British Military Administration (BMA). On 1 July 1946, the BMA was dissolved and Brunei was placed under the British Residential administration.

own Written Constitution which was signed in 29 September 1959. With the formation of the constitution, Brunei started to take over the internal responsibilities from the British Government. The constitution also placed Islam and the Malay Language as the state religion and official language of the country. The progress of development of Negara Brunei Darussalam in various aspects including administration, politics, religious affair, social and economic which he had carried out made him popularly known as 'the Architect of Modern Brunei'.

During the reign of Sultan Haji Omar Ali Saifuddin Sa'adul Khairi Waddien, the 28th Sultan of Brunei, who ruled in 1950-1967, many programmes were implemented. Programmes implemented were according to the first Five-Year National Development Plan (1953-1958) and the second Five-Year National Development Plan (1962-1966). Through the second Five-Year National Development Plan, several developments in social, economic and infrastructure made were enjoyed by the citizens and the residents of Negara Brunei Darussalam. In education, number of schools and students have grown especially secondary schools including the English Secondary schools and the number of students have also increased. He also consented to award overseas scholarships to the younger Bruneians to continue their studies to a higher education. Whereas in the infrastructure development, increasing the construction of roads, airport, schools, mosques, government department buildings, water and electrical services and so on.

What is APEC?

APEC stands for Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation. It is an organization of economies in the Asia-Pacific region formed to foster economic cooperation and trade among them with a view of enhancing international trade, its members work together to reduce trade barriers, open investment opportunities, ease the exchange of goods, services, resources and technical know-how, and strengthen economic and technical cooperation among them.

APEC member-economies include the major economies of the region and the most dynamic and fastest-growing economies in the world. The 21 economies together constitute more than half of the world's annual output and almost half of the world's total merchandise trade.

Panes nos. 2 (30s) and 3 (60s)
from APEC prestige booklet.

Who are the members of APEC?

Why are they called 'economies' instead of 'countries'?

The following are members of APEC: Australia, Brunei Darussalam, Canada, Chile, China, Hong Kong, Indonesia, Japan, South Korea, Malaysia, Mexico, New Zealand, Papua New Guinea, Peru, the Philippines, Singapore, Russia, Chinese Taipei, Thailand, United States and Vietnam.

The term 'economies' is used instead of 'countries' because APEC membership is not restricted to sovereign countries. For instance, Hong Kong is a Chinese territory under British rule and Taiwan's national sovereignty is not officially recognized by many countries.

SMALL, MEDIUM ENTERPRISES

When was APEC formed?

APEC officially started in 1989 when trade and economic ministers of 12 countries in the Asia-Pacific region met in Canberra, Australia on 6-7 November to advance the process of economic cooperation among countries in the region. Former Australian Prime Minister Bob Hawke suggested the creation of APEC following various attempts to create an economic cooperation group in the region.

The founding members of APEC are: Australia, Brunei Darussalam, Canada, Indonesia, Japan, South Korea, Malaysia, New Zealand, the Philippines, Singapore, Thailand and the United States.

ECO-TOURISM

8.120. APEC
15.11.2000

Text panes nos. 4 and 5
from APEC prestige booklet.

Why was APEC formed?

APEC was formed because of the following factors:

1. The General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), which could result in increased trade, was not enough to overcome new restrictive trade blocs and economic integration and a new era in the Soviet Union and Europe.

What are APEC's objectives?

The objectives of APEC are outlined in the 1991 Seoul APEC Declaration:

• to sustain the growth and development of the region for the common good of its peoples and, in this way, to contribute to the growth and development of the world economy;

• to enhance the positive parts, both for the region and the world economy, resulting from increasing economic interdependence, to include encouraging the flow of goods, services, capital and technology;

• to develop and strengthen the open multilateral trading system in the interest of Asia-Pacific and all other economies; and

• to reduce barriers to trade in goods and services and investment among participants in a manner consistent with GATT principles, where applicable, and without detriment to other economies.

Is APEC a trade bloc?

No. Since the beginning, the APEC member-economies agreed not to make APEC a trade bloc. The reason behind this resolve is that trade blocs tend to be inward-looking and exclude non-members. "Every economy represented in Canberra relies heavily on a strong and open multilateral trading system, and none believes that Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation should be directed to the formation of a trading bloc," the founders declared.

APEC has continued to "pursue free and open trade and investment cooperation in the world as a whole. Thus, the outcome of the cooperation in the Asia-Pacific will not only be the benefit of APEC economies but also between APEC and the rest of the world."

What are the characteristics of APEC?

APEC represents almost half of the world's trade and 48% of the world's Gross Domestic Product (GDP). APEC economies are considered to be in the range of world trade.

APEC member economies account for about 56% of the world's Gross Domestic Product.

- APEC represents almost half of the world's total merchandise exports;
- APEC member economies represent 40% of the total world population, or around two billion people;
- APEC groups together three of the world's largest economies (United States, Japan and Canada), which form part of the world's technological core — one of APEC's vital strengths in the conduct of world trade. APEC also includes the world's most dynamic and fastest-growing economies, ASEAN (Association of Southeast Asian Nations) countries, Taiwan, Hong Kong, China and South Korea;
- APEC is characterized by cultural and economic diversity due to varying levels of scientific and technological development.

What is the nature of APEC cooperation?

APEC is a consultation, not a negotiation forum. All commitments made by APEC member economies are voluntary — depends on what an economy is willing to give on the basis of its economic status. The association operates by consensus.

8.120. APEC
15.11.2000
Text panes nos. 6 and 7
from APEC prestige booklet.

Who heads APEC? How often do the leaders meet?

The heads of state or government of the member economies meet annually among the leaders of its member economies. The meeting is held in advance by consensus. Recognizing the special provision that the chairmanship of the summit is held by a member country. As is the tradition, the APEC leaders' summit is held in the member country. The first leaders summit was held in Singapore in 1989.

The heads of the member economies hold a series of consultative meetings between the APEC leaders' summit, which is usually held in the member country.

The APEC leaders' summit, which is attended by the heads of government of most member economies, is the culminating activity in the yearly APEC meetings.

- During the summit, the leaders discuss the different proposals by senior officials for pursuing economic cooperation and agree on a common stand.
- The ultimate results of the year-long series of consultative activities are contained in the APEC leaders' declaration.

Which economies have hosted the APEC chair so far?

The following have held the chairmanship of APEC: Australia (1989), Singapore (1990), South Korea (1991), Thailand (1992), the United States (1993), Indonesia (1994) and Japan (1995), Philippines (1996), Canada (1997), Malaysia (1998), New Zealand (1999). This year's chairmanship is held by Brunei Darussalam. The next host will be China (2001), and Mexico (2002).
