HISTORY OF CONFEDERATE CURRENCY

At the start of the Civil War, Confederate currency was accepted throughout the South as a medium of high purchasing power. Individual Southern states issued their own currency in addition to the currency issued by the Government of the Confederate States of America. Banks and towns also issued Confederate currency, and some associations issued their own scrip.

However, in a short time, the need for speed and eventually the shortage of proper paper stock resulted in lowered quality of paper currency. Many of the issues were not printed on the reverse side. Excessive printing of currency and the adverse progress of the war resulted in depreciation of the currency.

ABOUT THIS BILL

The central scene of this note pictures slaves at work in the cotton fields, a condition that the Southern states wished to continue and the major cause of the Civil War. Note the unusually high rate of interest of 10% payable on this note.
